Information available to EPA indicates that you may be a responsible party because the EPA has obtained various documents relating to the ownership and operation of the Site, and these documents indicate you are a current owner or a previous owner of property comprising the Site.

If you believe that EPA has made an error in identifying you as a current and/or former owner of this Site, please provide information supporting your position. In addition, if you are aware of the names and whereabouts of other former owners and operators of the Site, as well as potential generators and transporters of hazardous waste to the Site, please provide that information to EPA.

To assist you in working with EPA concerning this matter, EPA is providing the following information as Enclosures to this letter:

- (a) List of Parties Receiving Notice Letters (Enclosure "A")
- (b) Information Request (Enclosure "B")

SITE BACKGROUND

The Site encompasses 40 acres in Freeport, Brazoria County, Texas. The facility historically was used as a barge cleaning and servicing facility. The Site encompasses three buried/backfilled surface impoundments that received contaminated wash water from the barge cleaning operations, areas of contaminated soil, and releases to surface water and ground water. The Site is being proposed to the National Priorities List based on evidence that hazardous substances, including semivolatile organic compounds, lead, zinc, and pesticides, have migrated from the facility to the Intracoastal Waterway, pose a threat to nearby drinking water supplies and downstream sensitive environments, and have impacted fisheries downstream of the facility.

The facility operated as a barge cleaning and waste disposal facility from 1971 through 1979. Operations at the facility involved the cleaning, servicing, and repair of various chemical barges. Chemical barges were drained and pumped to remove product heels, which then were stored in tanks and sold as product. Each barge was washed with water or a detergent solution. Generated wash waters were stored either in surface impoundments, a floating barge, or on-Site storage tanks.

The surface impoundments received wash water from the cleaning of barges and other transport vessels that carried organic substances including alcohols, ketones, and crude oil. Waste wash water generated during the cleaning of chemical barges and other vessels was hard-piped to the surface impoundments for evaporation and separation. The maximum inventory of waste at any given time was 5.5 million gallons. The surface impoundments were certified closed in August 1982, following removal of the liquids and sludges, solidification of the remaining sludge with soil, and capping with three feet of clay cover and a hard wearing surface. Some sludge reportedly remained in one of the surface impoundments at the time of closure.

Underlying the Site is the Chicot/Evangeline aquifer system. This aquifer system is a major source of municipal and smaller public water supply systems in the Freeport area. The largest public water supply system within 4 miles of the Site is that of the city of Freeport, which supplies approximately 11,300 people.

The Site lies within the 100-year coastal floodplain along the north bank of the Intracoastal Waterway between Oyster Creek to the east and the Old Brazos River Channel and the Dow Barge Canal to the west. The southern part of the Site drains to the south where it enters the Intracoastal Waterway. The surface water migration pathway extends in all directions within contiguous surface water bodies, since these surface water bodies are tidally influenced. Surface water flows eastward into the Drum Bay, Christmas Bay, Bastrop Bay, and Galveston Bay. Galveston Bay is the seventh largest estuary in the United States and is designated as a National Estuary as part of the National Estuaries Program. In addition, Christmas Bay is designated as the Christmas Bay Coastal Preserve of the Texas Coastal Preserve Program, and harbors eight endangered or threatened species including the Bald Eagle, Brown Pelican, Peregrine Falcon, Whooping Crane, Piping Plover, Reddish Egret, White-faced Ibis, and Green Sea Turtle. The 12,199-acre Brazoria National Wildlife Refuge is located to the south of Bastrop Bayou and contains the habitats of three state-threatened species, including the Wood Stork, White-tailed Hawk, and the Swallow-tailed Kite. A wetland area is located approximately 500 feet south of the Site across the Intracoastal Waterway. This area is classified as intertidal estuarine, emergent, persistent, and regularly flooded.

INFORMATION REQUEST

In addition to the notice explained in this letter, EPA is also seeking your cooperation in providing information you may have about the Site, as explained further in the enclosed Information Request (Enclosure "B".) Under Section 104(e)(2) of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9604(e)(2), EPA has broad information gathering authority which allows EPA to require persons to furnish information and documents relating to the history of the ownership and operation of the Site, waste generation at the Site, and waste disposal practices at the Site. Information which you submit in response to this Information Request may be disclosed by EPA to authorized representatives of the United States, pursuant to 40 CFR 2.310(h), even if you assert that all or part of the information is confidential business information. Please be advised that EPA intends to disclose all responses to this Information Request to one or more of its private contractors for the purpose of organizing and/or analyzing the information contained in the responses to this Information Request.

While EPA seeks your cooperation in this investigation, compliance with the Information Request is required by law. Please note that false, fictitious, or fraudulent statements or representations may subject you to civil or criminal penalties under Federal law. Under section 104(e)(5)(B)(ii) of CERCLA, the EPA may request a court to impose penalties of up to $27,500 per day for non-compliance with this Information Request. Although you may consider some of the information EPA is requesting to be confidential, please be aware that you may not withhold the information upon that basis. If you wish EPA to treat the information confidentially, you must advise EPA of that fact by following the procedures outlined in Enclosure "B" (Information Request, Gulfco Marine Maintenance, Inc. Site), including the requirement for supporting your claim for confidentiality.

If you have information about other parties who may have information which may assist EPA in its investigation of the Site or may be responsible for the contamination found at the Site, that information should be submitted along with this Information Request.
